

From the Principal...

Over the past few months I have come across a number of strong evangelical ministries which came into existence as the result of an answer to prayer. Faithful men and women, trusting God but not sure what would eventuate or when, prayed that God would provide a faithful gospel-centred ministry in some place or other — prayed for years in some cases — and then against all odds God had raised it up.

I ought not to have been surprised. God has chosen to work in answer to the prayers of his people. That simple truth stands behind Jesus' exhortation to 'pray earnestly to the Lord of the harvest to send out laborers into his harvest' (Matt 9:38). God involves us in his mission, first and foremost, by leading us to pray.

God has answered the prayers of his people for Moore College in just the last few weeks. After a few years when the number of full-time residential students had been decreasing, the downward turn seems to have been arrested and this year we have a modest increase in our full-time intake. Alongside that, our part-time and online student numbers continue to grow. God is clearly putting it in the hearts of people to consider theological study and ministry training, and to do that at Moore College. There may well be a number of things which have contributed to this result, humanly speaking, but fundamentally and primarily it is the result of prayer.

As one year begins, already we start to pray for next year's intake. I have recently been told again of the urgent need for full-time ordained gospel workers in the churches of our Diocese. Our churches need pastors who will shepherd God's people, reach out to those who are lost in the surrounding community, and maintain a focus on global mission. Across Australia that need is also keenly felt. The mission field is full of opportunity as well. Will you pray that God would raise up people to meet this need and that a great number of them will come and train full-time at Moore College?

We are very grateful for your prayers. They are the lifeblood of this work. Please keep praying: by yourself, with others, and perhaps consider joining us for the meetings of the Prayer Support Group (women) and the Men Praying for Moore breakfast.
